ASTRO File Manager™ Hits 15 Million Downloads on the Android Marketplace

Metago's ASTRO File Manager™ increases its market share greatly, providing file management, task management, and application management in a single download.

Marietta, GA – August 31, 2011 – Metago Incorporated, the developer of ASTRO File Manager™, the leading content and task management tool for Android mobile devices, announced today ASTRO has exceeded 15 million downloads on the Android Marketplace alone, with an average of over 45,000 downloads per day.

ASTRO provides users with the ability to manage their content, applications, external memory, and processes on their Android smart phones and tablets. In addition to managing pictures, music, video and documents, it provides a robust task killer that closes unused processes that often burden mobile device resources and allows root access to files.

“We are about to release version 3.0, which will have an improved user interface with honeycomb support and many other features that will enhance the user experience,” said Kevin Payne, founder and CEO of Metago. “We have a highly focused effort with our research and development team to enhance existing functionality and create new products and functionality that will help our users better manage their Android devices. In a matter of weeks we will make some very exciting announcements about a new product that will take ASTRO to a new level.”

“Fifteen million downloads on the Market is a great accomplishment. However, we believe it is just the beginning for us,” said Kent Krueger, vice president of sales, marketing and customer experience at Metago. “We’re investing a tremendous amount of time and resources working on enhancing our core product while developing new solutions that fit seamlessly with ASTRO. We are fully committed to creating the best customer experience and believe users will see this in the coming weeks.”
